Gilbert

Outstanding Faculty Member for the School of Business in 1993 and was nominated by one of her students to Who's Who Among America's Teachers in 1996. In March 1994, she and her husband, Maurice, traveled to the former Soviet Union as invited experts from America to lecture at universities in Estonia and Uzbekistan and to advise businesses and university faculty in those countries on quality improvements in production processes and the effects of such efforts on their economics. She and her husband, Maurice, reside in Columbia.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Fall 1996's opening of school theme was "Change." A year later, have we made changes? Have you? And if yes, are the changes for the better?

As I look back over the list of last year's accomplishments (not an exhaustive list), I see an institution focused on its mission while positioning itself to be even better than it has been. So I say, YES, we have changed for the better.

Most of us have responded to change with a sense of purpose, positive feelings and good humor. We are thin administratively, but our talented and dedicated staff members continue to respond to change and improve our various systems. Changes in technology through the advent of the Internet and intranet has presented us with ways to communicate, research, and teach more efficiently and substantively. We have seen change in our personnel. We have lost some outstanding colleagues and close friends. And we have added to our faculty and staff a cadre of new talented colleagues, and close friends to be.

This past year was as challenging as we knew it would be. But more importantly, our accomplishments far exceed our set backs. As to the near future, the semester conversion, SACS self-study, capital campaign, legislative affairs, NCATE review and round two of technology enhancements afford us great opportunities to harness change and demonstrate again our focus on success and quality. But as we face our new challenges, help me remember those whom we serve, and those who are enriched through TSUD's mutual association and commitment to mission. Teaching, learning and service remain our focus and thanks to your good efforts, students will continue to be the beneficiaries of our focus and commitment.

Have a great quarter!

Michael E. Malone

SATURDAY REGISTRATION POPULAR WITH STUDENTS

The recent introduction of Saturday registration seemed to be a hit with approximately 260 students. These students took advantage of the three-hour period from 9:00 A.M. 'til Noon on Saturday, September 6. Informal chats with students during the morning found that students enjoyed the ease of registration without the rush from work or the hassles associated with asking to leave work early to register.

Dr. Barbara Alford, vice president for student and community affairs, said, "We have just recently begun to evaluate the effects of the Saturday registration. It's difficult to tell if we picked up new students because of this format. Probably, we offered a convenience to those busy, fast-paced students with job and family responsibilities." The decision to continue every quarter in this manner has yet to be decided. A special Saturday registration is scheduled for Winter Quarter 1998 on Saturday, December 13, from 9:00 - Noon. "I do know that we will continue to listen to our students and continue to provide to them the services they need in order to make their stay here pleasant," added Alford.

TSUD LOSES TWO OF ITS OWN

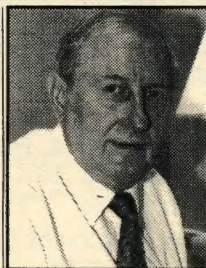

Two TSUD faculty members passed away during the summer, leaving the university in a state of sorrow.

Dr. John Woodham, professor emeritus of history, passed away on July 30, 1997, after a long battle with cancer. Dr. Woodham was the director of the international relations program, a graduate program in the College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Woodham was employed with TSUD in March of 1971. His wife, Sonja, works in library services, and we are glad that she is back with us for the fall quarter.

Longtime friend and former dean Larry Brown said, "Dr. Woodham was an excellent teacher and scholar whose presence is still evident in the many classrooms occupied by his former students."

The School of Education lost one of its outstanding faculty members, Dr. Robert Jones, on August 16, 1997, due to complications following knee replacement surgery. Dr. Jones was an associate professor of psychology and counseling and had been with TSUD since September of 1993. His specialty area was in substance abuse and prevention. At the time of his death, he was serving as the chairman of the board for the Dothan/Houston County Substance Abuse Partnership.

Both of these gentlemen will be greatly missed here at TSUD.

TSUD Semester Conversion Process Begins

Beginning with the Fall 1999 term, Troy State University Dothan will convert from a quarter to semester system. Instead of four ten-week quarters in the school year, there will be three semesters. The fall and spring semesters will be about 15 weeks long each not including the final exam periods. Fall semester will run from mid-August to early December with spring semester beginning in early January and ending in early May. The summer term will be approximately ten weeks long.

The conversion to semesters by The Troy State University System is in response to several factors. Beginning in Fall 1998, most other two- and four-year colleges and universities in the state of Alabama will convert from quarters to semesters. More than two-thirds of the colleges and universities in the U.S. are now on the semester course schedule. The conversion is also in response to an articulation and general studies recommendation made by the Alabama Commission on Higher Education to convert to semesters within two years.

Converting to semesters offers several advantages to students. Since the majority of state-assisted institutions in Alabama will convert to semesters, the impact on students transferring within the University System of Alabama will be slight. Students will be able to transfer courses from one school to another without losing credits. It will also be easier for students to cross-register with schools on the semester system. Students will also have more time to spend understanding and retaining material covered in their courses. Students won't have the intense pressure of completing course work in the shorter time frame of a quarter.

The University has formed four committees to plan and organize the conversion process. The Semester Conversion Committee will develop the semester academic calendar and coordinate planning among the other committees. The Academic Committee will revise curriculum, define degree requirements, and develop a master schedule into the first semester year. The Student Concerns Committee will plan advisement and training, develop financial aid and admissions deadlines, inform the public, and plan and implement all technology changes. The Business and Finance Committee will develop payment plans and assist other areas in determining other costs associated with semester conversion.

TSUD President Michael Malone says "As we move to the semester system, the first guiding principle will be: No student will be ill served by the transition process."

The transition is on!

Dr. Cynthia Lumpkin attended SDE meeting on Collaborative Teacher Education on June 5; co-directed the teacher seminar "The Creek Nation - Past & Present" June 9-20; worked on The TSU System Conference Planning Committee on June 24 and August 4; co-directed

Summer Spectacular, July 7-31; attended Ozark Education Summit and Goals Conference on June 19; worked on Arts and Sciences Dean Search Committee; attended and served as group facilitator at TSU System Conference in Eufaula, August 27 and 28.

on July 21; trained Lee County administrators in the Alabama Professional Evaluation Program for Educators (PEPE) on August 4 - 8; trained Montgomery administrators on June 11 and 12 and July 30 and 31; created Power Point orientation presentation being used by other SED Alabama PEPE trainers; presented Teacher Orientation on Professional Evaluation Programs to the teachers of Talledega County Schools during Teacher Institute on August 12; attended Ozark Economic Development Advisory Committee on August 14; made an Action Plan presentation to WLI Goals Conference volunteers on August 14; visited the Southern Caribbean in August; met with work group facilitators in planning session, August 1 and 24; served as work group facilitator for TSU Conference on August 27 and 28; worked with University of Alabama and mailed to the student within ten business days. If there is a debit in the student's account, the student is required to pay the difference. The student may receive notice from the financial aid source that the financial aid has been electronically transmitted to the University, but the Financial Aid Office cannot post that aid to the student's aid file until the guarantee is received.

Congratulations to Becky Izzell, administrative secretary for academic affairs, on receiving the most CAPS OFF cards for the spring/summer quarters. She received dinner-for-two from La Bamba.

In short, student aid applications must be completed accurately and submitted in a timely manner and financial aid must be guaranteed before it can be posted to the student's account.

Chess Club

The TSUD chess team placed second in the Alabama Intercollegiate Chess Tournament held recently at TSUD. The University of South Alabama's chess team took first place, while the chess team from Tuskegee University placed third.

According to TSUD chess team member and tournament chair, Ken Harmon, "The competition was a success and brought together several different teams from colleges throughout the state."

Tribute to Dr. Robert Jones

Dr. Robert Jones came to TSUD just as I was starting my graduate studies. He taught me the drug and alcohol course, and I sought his advice in this area. I went into Drug and Alcohol Counseling and was influenced by his teachings, wisdom and insights. His helping me understand the disease concept of alcoholism was probably the single most influential factor in developing my counseling style and led to my gaining certification as an alcohol and drug professional. How fitting and kind it was that one of the last things he did before passing was recommend me to advise the Dothan-Houston County Substance Abuse Board. He helped me one last time before his death. His influence will be in my counseling forever.

Library News

by Frank Walker, library director

As a means of cutting costs, the Library has cancelled more than 100 journal titles. The cost of journals increases an average of 10% each year, and this year was no exception. On the plus side, over 95% of the journals cancelled are available in full-text through one of the three databases to which the Library subscribes. This means that students and faculty will still have access to the journals, in electronic format, and can make print copies of articles.

TSUD is not alone in cutting journal subscriptions. Libraries across the state have made the same difficult decision. Among Alabama's university libraries, there is concern that at some point no library will have a subscription to particular titles, and that full text journals available now may not be available two to three years from now. The commercial vendor may not offer the same titles from year to year. Document delivery may become more prevalent (at a higher cost) as libraries continue to wrestle with means of delivering journals to its constituencies. In some cases, libraries are resorting to an industrial trend in providing "just in time" services.

Summer quarter was our first experience with "full-text" delivery. The vast majority of the students were pleased with the service. An added benefit of online databases is that students can e-mail the journal article directly to their home computer. All of us are finding that we must adjust to new methods of delivery of services. These new methods are here to stay.
